

Welcome to the 12th annual ELLE DECOR A-LIST

This year, our annual look at the industry's most outstanding firms across residential interiors, architecture, and landscape design includes a hot new crop of 10 standouts whose work has captured our full attention—no small feat these days. We also salute the industry Titans whose projects continue to inspire us. Plus, the debut of our A-List Agenda will have you traveling in high style this summer.

COURTNEY McLEOD

Courtney McLeod does not fear a yellow wall or quake at the sight of an orange sofa. Since exiting a career in finance, the founder and principal of RIGHT MEETS LEFT INTERIOR DESIGN has channeled the sophistication and exuberance of her native New Orleans into spirited residential projects from Boulder, Colorado, to New York City and Massachusetts.

ANDRE MELLONE

Securing one of the more enviable commercial commissions of the year—transforming the lobby at 50 Rockefeller Plaza into a soigné Mad Men fantasy—Brazilian designer

Andre Mellone has risen to historic heights since founding his firm, STUDIO MELLONE, in 2012, bringing his comfortably sumptuous style to private residences and luxury retail spaces alike.

With the recent release of his first book and graceful projects from prewar pieds-à-terre to a rollicking Greek Revival estate in the Catskills of New York, Billy Cotton is poised to become the new prince of elegant East Coast living. His cinematic, delightfully off-kilter interiors are the architectural equivalent of a handwritten note: personal, impressive, and wholly unexpected.

NICOLE HOLLIS

Self-taught Nicole Hollis started off designing big-impact hotels in Atlanta, Seattle, and San Francisco. Now her residential work takes precedence, often encompassing large-scale collaborations with artists and designers.

A Pop Art powder room by the designer in a San Francisco landmark graced our March 2022 cover, but we've been in love much longer than that.

On the horizon: His firm, NELSON BYRD WOLTZ, will soon unveil a master plan of Forsyth Park in Savannah, Georgia.

6. Class of 2022

JESSICA DAVIS

Jessica Davis launched NEST STUDIO in 2012 for luxury home hardware; her design studio, ATELIER DAVIS, quickly followed. Davis's work (as seen in March 2022 ELLE DECOR) draws from a childhood spent growing up all over the world. She is currently channeling those influences into the design of a new Atlanta restaurant set in a Victorian house.

RODNEY LAWRENCE

The residential and hospitality work of designer Rodney Lawrence straddles high-end and high-stakes with finesse. Case in point: a South Florida beach home with an eye-catching (and hard to install) art collection shown in ELLE DECOR's March 2022 issue.

Lawrence is currently at work on commercial projects in Florida and New York.

HANNES PEER

After cutting his teeth at Rem Koolhaas's firm OMA, Hannes Peer launched his own architecture and design practice in 2009. Over the past 13 years he's created spaces showcasing a reverence for history and rigorous research (like the Milan apartment on our September 2021 cover), with projects in China, Paris, and Japan slated for completion later this year.

Pattern play and irreverent finishes are the name of the game at REATH DESIGN. Frances Merrill founded the studio in 2009 and has created warm and inviting interiors that look lived-in from day one. In her toolbox are unexpected colors and a welcome readiness to work with items her clients already own, making her the go-to for every adventurous sentimentalist.

10. Class of 2022 HUGO TORO

interior designer Hugo Toro prides himself on his attention to detail. That focus is expressed in a spate of projects simultaneously sleek and imbued with old-world glamour, like London's newly opened bar and restaurant Booking Office 1869 and the home we feature on page 140. This spring Toro debuted a new furniture collection at Christie's.
